LAWS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

1. Subscribers who do not give exhibit notice to the contrary are considered as wishing to renew their subscriptions.

2. If such subscribers order the paper discontinued at the expiration of the period for which they have paid, the publisher is desired to send them until all arrearages are paid.

3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their periodicals from the post-office to which they are directed, they are responsible until they have settled their bills and ordered them discontinued.

4. If subscribers move to other places without informing the publisher, and the papers are sent to the former address, they are held responsible.

5. The courts have decided that refusing to take periodicals from the office or removing and leaving them uncalled for, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

6. If subscribers pay in advance they are bound to give notice at the end of the time if they do not wish to continue taking it; otherwise the publisher is authorized to send it and the subscriber will be responsible until an express notice, with payment of all arrearages, is sent to the publisher.

POLITICAL ANNOUNCEMENTS.

The following named persons are announced as candidates for the office specified below, subject to the decision of the Democratic County Convention.

FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONER.

HARRY D. WHEELER, of Delmar

C. H. TREMAINE, of Lawrence.

I hereby announce myself as a Democratic candidate for County Commissioner.

C. H. DEWITT, Mainesburg, Pa.

DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVENTION.

The Democratic State Convention of Pennsylvania will assemble at the Academy of Music, in the city of Scranton, at 10 o'clock a. m. on WEDNESDAY, JULY 2, 1890, to nominate candidates for Governor, Lieutenant Governor and Secretary of Internal Affairs. The convention will consist of representative delegates chosen under the rules of the party from the several Assembly Districts, one for each 1,000 Democratic votes cast at the last preceding Gubernatorial election, or for a fraction of 1,000 such votes amounting to 500 or more in the respective representative districts, provided that each representative district shall have at least one delegate.

ELLIOTT P. KINNER,
Chairman State Democratic Committee.
BENJAMIN M. NEAD, Secretary.

GOVERNOR BEAVER has ordered a special election for May 20th, to elect a successor to the late Samuel J. Randall, in the Third Congressional District.

IN his recent speech on the Farmers' Alliance, General Butler made the statement that the farm mortgages of the country amount to "the stupendous sum of $3,450,000,000."

THE United States Supreme Court, in an Iowa case, has decided adversely to the constitutionality of State laws providing for the seizure of liquor taken into Prohibition States in the original package.

IT has been remarked, and that by prominent Republicans, that the next Governor of Pennsylvania will be nominated at Scranton on the second day of July. The voters of the State will vindicate Mr. Quay by selecting an honest, capable man to sit in the executive chair at Harrisburg.

THE Harrisburg Patriot tells what may be expected of the coming Republican State Convention: "The probability is that the Republican State Convention, which assembles in this city on the 28th of June, will endorse the McKinley tariff bill and back up the endorsement with a great deal of rot about protection to the American workingman. In fact, a display of cheek is likely to be a prominent feature of the meeting."

TWO hundred and fifty of the leading merchants and importers of New York city held a meeting the other day to protest against the passage of the McKinley monopoly protection bill. A resolution was adopted condemning the proposed measure and delegating the chairman to go to Washington and place the matter before Congress. It goes without saying that no one is pleased with the bill; even McKinley and the monopolists whom he represents are not satisfied, because the bill does not go far enough to suit them.

THE opposition to Quay and Delamater in the Republican ranks is daily becoming more pronounced. Thus far the leading kickers on Delamater in the Republican press are: Truth, Scranton; Miners' Journal, Pottsville; Republican, Schuylkill; Star, Bradford; Courier, DuBois; Chronicle-Telegraph, Pittsburg; Press, Philadelphia. But Quay has already nominated Delamater, and it only remains for the Democrats and independent Republicans of the State to assist Quay and Delamater in the reform business by securing their defeat.

THE farmer, like everyone else who does not keep abreast of the times, is wondering why protection does not bring him prosperity. The farmers have a market at home practically sufficient to consume all their products.—Republican Exchange. The farmer will be [illegible] falsehood, if he does take the trouble to inform himself [illegible] exports [illegible] $80, including in [illegible] products [illegible] amounted to [illegible] precisely [illegible] over-production.

THE Tariff Club, of [illegible], took as [illegible] Cleveland said. Those who [illegible] juggle with the question [illegible] will never again find their [illegible] duped away and grind [illegible] people shall know the meaning [illegible] tion and shall know [illegible] and honest administration [illegible] them. With such a mission and in the enforcement of such a principle it is a glorious thing to be a true Democrat in these days. The zeal and enthusiasm which at the time prevail in our party demonstrate that democracy is never in a more vigorous state than when it battles for a principle which involves the real welfare and prosperity of the people.

GRAY, the man who wants to reform, [illegible] Chief [illegible] Quay's [illegible] a gigantic plot to secure an overwhelming Republican majority in the next Ohio [illegible] Superintendent of Census Porter, the [illegible] of the Fuel Syndicate has [illegible] with the [illegible] and it is [illegible] the Ohio [illegible] the details of the plot [illegible] to the [illegible] if it were [illegible] Republican [illegible] of the [illegible] Administration [illegible] the Republican [illegible] not to [illegible] to [illegible] will be [illegible] the [illegible] will be [illegible] to sell [illegible] of the [illegible] But [illegible] Republican [illegible] will be [illegible] to [illegible] the [illegible] will be [illegible] to [illegible] the [illegible] will be [illegible] to [illegible] the

And nobody saw me at all.

Katharine Pyle, in St. Nicholas for May.

ONE AMONG A HUNDRED.

"Amy, thar cums Hugh Peterson down the lane. Jest run in and put on yore blue calliker. I'll talk loug w' him till yo' cums out."

The speaker, a tall, dark-eyed, elderly woman, addressed a gentle-faced girl of about 20, who was gathering a bouquet of roses by her side.

It was winter, but in Florida roses are especially fine in December, and Amy Wilson had the rarest collection in the country.

She turned slowly toward her mother, adding a bud here and there to her basket, already piled, as she did so.

No mother! This dress looks well enough, and I cannot entertain him this afternoon. I promised to carry this basket of flowers to Lena Pratt to help decorate the church to-morrow, and she will wait for me."

I do believe yo' got no grain o' sense. Amy Wilson, to turn yore back on a good-lookin' well-to-do young fellow like Hugh Peterson. To jes' send him straight along. I declar, yo' vex me!" with a frown on her unusually placid brow, as she looked searchingly into the fair face of the girl before her.

Amy laughed, and tinged [illegible] upon the cheek [illegible] brown, but slender fingers.

"He is almost here, mother, and I will go in and slip out the back way. You can make excuses for me, for indeed I cannot disappoint Lena."

And she was gone before her mother could add a word.

The day was perfect, and, walking through the sweet-smelling pines, Amy sighed contentedly. The pleasant green of the woods never framed a sweeter or fairer picture than she made, with her basket of roses on her arm and her deep-gray eyes turned dreamily upon the familiar prospect around her.

Her parents belonged to the "cracker" caste, but they were thrifty and industrious and had given their children the best advantages their means afforded.

Amy, being the youngest and best beloved, had fared even better than her brothers and sisters, and was regarded in the neighborhood as quite a prodigy in the way of learning and accomplishments.

At the foot of an immense pine tree she paused, and pressing her hand caressingly over some rude letters carved upon the trunk, she whispered:

"True till death!" That was the promise. I will never doubt you, Rob, nor give my heart to another. What does it matter that I have not heard from you for two years? When you have made a home for me, however humble, you will come, and I [illegible] wait!"

Ah, Hugh Peterson, could you have seen her tender eyes a moment ago, you would not rein in your horses so confidently, as you reach her side, nor so hastily dismount and take masterful possession of her basket of roses!

She looked up into his really handsome, manly face, and said, coldly:

"Why did you come? I told you yesterday that I should not be at home."

"You always tell me that," smiling down upon her with tender eyes. "If I waited for an invitation from you, I should never see you. But your mother is my friend, and your father, too; and with them on my side, I shall not be denied. Are you made of stone that you care so little for my love?" sudden passion upon his face and breaking tremulously through his voice.

Before she could answer, he added, hastily;

"No, I will not listen to what you say, for I know you mean to banish me as usual. I believe I can win you in spite of your coldness, and I shall never give you up until I see you married to another."

She turned her eyes full upon him.

"Your hope is vain. You will not believe me?" earnestly, solemnly. "You know why I cannot love you. Why waste your heart and time upon me?"

"Because I know how girls change," laughing lightly, "and because I know I am more fitted to make your life comfortable and happy than Rob Stewart."

With his broad acres, prosperous store, and beautiful home, it was no wonder he was sure of success.

He loved her ardently and tenderly, and she was the only girl who had ever looked upon his handsome, laughing face with coldness.

Of course this piqued him, and as she was the first woman he had ever cared to win for his wife, he would not easily give her up.

At his last words she threw up her head proudly.

"If we are to be friends at all, you must not speak in that tone of Rob."

"Very well. I meant no disrespect, for Rob is a fine fellow, if he is unfortunate in business. His folks are blue about him, for they haven't heard from him for over a year, and they are sure he is in trouble."

Amy sighed softly, but answered, resolutely:

"He will come back some day and surprise them. Ye will all feel sorry then to have talked about and doubted [illegible]
